GUNMAN CAUGHT IN THE CATSKILLS

"Whitey" Lewis, One of Rosenthal's Alleged Murderers, Was Employed as a Farmhand

TWO OTHERS TRACKED TO THE SAME VICINITY

Arrest of "Lefty Louis" and "Gyp the Blood" Expected Soon—Captured Thug Denied All Knowledge of Murder and Was Greatly Depressed by His Arrest—Was Just Preparing to Go West—Moss Investigating Police Craft.

New York, August 1.—"Whitey" Lewis, one of the four gunmen wanted by the police as the actual murderers of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, was arrested in the Catskill mountains this afternoon and later tonight was taken to Kingston, N. Y., to be locked in the county jail. This was announced tonight at police headquarters here by Inspector Hughes, who said that three of his detectives had located Lewis at Fleischmann, N. Y., summer resort, forty-six miles from Kingston.

Was Working on Farm. After scouring the region for nearly two weeks the detectives found Lewis working on a farm. Inspector Hughes said, and today arrested him just as he was to board a train at Fleischmann and make his escape. The prisoner will be brought to New York on an early train tomorrow morning.

Two Others in Same Vicinity. It was reported at police headquarters tonight that "Lefty Louis" and "Gyp the Blood," two of the alleged murderers had been tracked to the same vicinity and that their arrest would soon occur. The news that one of the fugitives had been trapped was received with great elation at police headquarters tonight because of the criticism that had been directed toward the police department for their failure to arrest any of the men charged with the actual killing of the gambler.

Two Murderers Now in Custody. With the arrest of Lewis, the police have now in custody two of the four alleged murderers of the late "Dago" Frank who is now in the tomb and a fellow prisoner of Police Lieutenant Charles Becker, who is charged with investigating the murder of Rosenthal in order to stop his exposure of alleged blackmail practiced by the police upon gamblers.

Lewis Refuses to Talk. Detective Harvey, one of the men who arrested Lewis, in a report made to Inspector Hughes over the long-distance telephone late tonight, said that the prisoner refused to talk about the sensational murder of Rosenthal and denied all knowledge of the crime. Lewis seemed much depressed by his arrest, according to the detective, and expressed surprise that he had fallen into the hands of the police. The gambler, who had very little money with him, told the detective that he planned to go to Rosenthal's summer resort at Kingston and make his escape.

Murderers to Receive First Attention. While District Attorney Whitman believes that as a result of the investigation into the murder of Herman Rosenthal he has obtained evidence linking strongly to the existence of a well-known police graft system, he announced tonight that this phase of the investigation would be postponed until he had convicted the murderers of the gambler and all who were involved in the plot.

Murder Worse than Blackmail. "Murder" said Mr. Whitman tonight, "is a greater crime than the larceny of blackmail by the police. I decline to be distracted by any request for a general investigation of the police department until these murderers have been brought to justice. I am endeavoring to prosecute to conviction all the murderers."

The prosecutor took pains to add, however, that the investigation into the graft system was a necessary consideration only temporarily, and said that he had delegated Assistant District Attorney Moss to carry it on.

To Obtain List of Gamblers. Mr. Moss expects to visit in his call Inspector Jack Ross, well-known chief collector for Charles Becker, the police lieutenant, who is charged with investigating Rosenthal's murder, and will go over with him again his statement that Becker had told him that the annual blackmail levied by police upon gambling houses and other night resort proprietors was $2,000,000. This figure, the district attorney believes, is no exaggeration. Mr. Moss expects to get from Ross and also from Becker a list of the names of the gamblers who paid tribute and also a list of graft collectors. These will be submitted before the grand jury and from them it is hoped to gain clues that will indicate how "high up" the graft went and how it was distributed.

Becker's Attorney Before Grand Jury. Following up this policy of a two-fold prosecution, District Attorney Whitman today announced that he was sending down upon Becker the writ of habeas corpus by which he hopes to compel him to believe the man who investigated the murder of Rosenthal. He said that Becker had been a partner in the gambling establishment of Herman Rosenthal, and according to Becker's story, that he was a partner in the gambling establishment of Herman Rosenthal, and according to Becker's story, that he was a partner in the gambling establishment of Herman Rosenthal.

Becker Should Have Appeared Here. Some admitted to the district attorney that he was in an almost hysterical condition that day on account of his fear of Lewis, and had telegraphed Becker from New York to come to Kingston, N. Y., to be taken to the county jail.

"Dago Frank" Identified. New York, Aug. 1.—"Dago Frank" Croft, one of the four gunmen wanted by the police for the murder of the gambler, Herman Rosenthal, was identified today as being in the city at the time of the shooting. The identification was made by three men, took place before the grand jury with the apparent purpose of shaking the nerve of the gambler and forcing a complete confession from him. One of those who identified Croft along with William Shapiro, driver of the murder car, was a man whom officials of the prosecutor's office refer to as the "unknown." Croft appeared to be greatly shaken by the appearance of the "unknown" and a confession of the gambler seemed imminent, officials of the district attorney's office said.

LAWYER DARROWS' CIPHER MESSAGES. Unexpected Feature Brought Out in Cross Examination of Lawyer.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 1.—The deciphering of cipher messages by Assistant District Attorney Darrow through his discovery of the secret code used by Clarence S. Darrow, has provided an unexpected sensation in the Darrow trial. The messages disclosed yesterday afternoon were part of a large number of telegrams secured by the federal authorities engaged in the dynamiting investigation.

Among the documents in the possession of the district attorney is the telegram which was sent by Darrow to Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, on December 1, 1911, the day on which the McNamara pleaders were taken. This message was not in code. On the same day, as appeared from the evidence taken yesterday, Darrow sent a check for $10,000 drawn upon the McNamara defense fund by Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor, and made payable to Darrow, was cancelled.

Darrow resumed the stand today for further examination.

PROBLEM FOR SUPERIOR COURT. To Determine if Roosevelt Electors Can Go on Kansas Ballot.

New York, August 1.—The action of Kansas state courts in refusing to order the names of eight Roosevelt candidates for presidential electors stricken from the primary ballot was partially reversed tonight by Justices Deane and Pitney of the United States supreme court. While these justices granted the application of the Taft men for a writ of error directed to the Kansas courts, their decision does not constitute a final victory for the regular republican organization.

Under its terms the question of the right of the Roosevelt candidates to places on the primary ticket will be decided by the full bench of the supreme court at its next regular session in October. Meanwhile the Roosevelt men will have their names on the ballots at the Kansas primary election on Tuesday.

The effect of today's decision is to leave the whole Kansas controversy suspended until October. The proceedings before the supreme court are now before the supreme court. The effect of today's decision is to leave the whole Kansas controversy suspended until October.

The original action was brought by R. M. Marks and twelve other Kansas citizens to prevent the names of eight candidates for presidential electors, who had said that if elected they would vote for Roosevelt, from being placed on the republican primary ticket. The Kansas courts decided that they had no jurisdiction in the case, since the dispute was purely political and an attempt to pass on the merits of the allegations of fraud was made.

In making their application for a writ of error, the Taft men declared that the federal courts had jurisdiction to prevent the state of Kansas from depriving any of its citizens of their free right to express their choice at the polls.

While the Taft men formed the basis of the argument, the success of the eight Roosevelt candidates at the primaries would put the regular republicans in a difficult position.

In deciding not to interfere with the state primaries, Justice Van Devanter and Justice Pitney declared that the only way not to injure either party was to let the primaries proceed with the Roosevelt candidates on the ticket and await the action of the full court.

It is understood that the court will decide the case before the general election in November and in time to keep the Roosevelt electors off the ballot in case the latter are defeated in the election.

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 1.—With the cynical face of her husband glaring at her from the pillow of his cot, Mrs. Daisy Ople Grace told her story today to the jury that is to decide if she is guilty of the charge of attempting to kill Grace.

It was a remarkable story, told in a calm, even voice. Mrs. Grace occupied almost an hour in telling it and at its conclusion the defendant smiled at the jury.
